Right and righteousness used to be synonyms; by the dictionary they are still.

But to me, righteousness has come to mean indignation, and not necessarily moral indignation.

The finger pointers, the "righteous ones" are often to be feared more for the real reasons they are pointing not the apparent or plausible reasons they give.

There is a way to turn attention to you or away:

The former is to scream your bloody lungs out about an injustice you conceive to have been done to yourself and watch the attention grow.

The other is mount some pedestal, some tenuous pose, some phony cause in front of some otherwise genuine institution and point the finger (while of course drawing attention to your uprightness.)

And if you don't think some apparently upright, good people use these devices daily, just walk around with your eyes open and your head on for about a week... anywhere.

Because of this, most of us are better off being right and not righteous. Obviously, being human, we are fallible when born and more fallible as we learn to survive the incongruities of a lifetime.

We'll learn someday that most of the movement and busywork of this life is to convince somebody else how good we are so they can convince us we are not as inadequate as most of us feel we are.

One way to this proof is get attention for apparently good, moral reasons when the real reason is to get attention, to salve a lonely ego.

Satisfying this drive may do enormous good or enormous damage. But the ego doesn't care. It feeds on attention which is hard to get. Part of the price may be righteousness, inflicting "right" the "wrong" way.

In "Desiderata," an ancient poem recently read on popular record, there is a phrase advising:

"... speak your truth quietly..."

It will be heard, even above the screaming and yelling, long after they are dissipated.

There is something ominous about silence to those compelled to righteousness. Maybe in silence they hear the emptiness of their own thoughts.

Yoe Students Win In Science Fair

Yoe High School had two first place winners in the Central Texas Regional Science Fair in Waco March 23 and 24.

James Herbert Nance won first place in the chemistry division with his project, "The Influence of Impoundment in Belton Reservoir." Cathy Jean Kubes won first place in the Mathematics and Computers division.

An awards banquet was held at noon Friday at the Baylor Student Union where approximately 50 special awards were made. Those students from Yoe High who received awards were:

Cathy Jean Kubes, the U. S. Air Force Physics Award for her project, "The Speed of Sound." Cathy also won an award from the U. S. Air Force and another from the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics. This last award included an invitation to attend the AIAA next meeting in May at Waco. Fred Johns, Cathy's sponsor, was also included in the invitation.

Rebecca Gwyn Ivey won a rock hammer from the Baylor Geology Department for her project, "How Milam County Water is affected by Water Sands."

Herbert Nance also won an award from the U. S. Army for his project. The Chemistry Department at Baylor awarded him a "Handbook of Chemistry and Physics," 1971-72 edition.

The awards for the Central Texas Regional Science Fair were made in another program. Medals were given in eleven categories. Students from Yoe High and their categories were:

Behavorial and Social Sciences - Debbie Coker, honorable mention. Biochemistry - Phyllis Hanel, third place. Chemistry - Herbert Nance, first place.

Mathematics and Computers - Cathy Kubes, first place; Mike Willy, honorable mention. Earth Science - Gwyn Ivey, third place; Jan Stewart, honorable mention.

Other students taking their projects to Waco were Jack Raymond, Connie Lucko, Nina Mae Green, and Bonnie Ball.

Rockdale Seniors Win Alcoa Scholarships

Two top ranking seniors from Rockdale High School have been named winners of the two $1,000 four year Alcoa Foundation college scholarships awarded annually to sons and daughters of employees at the company's Rockdale Works.

Recipients of the 1972 scholarships are Judith Clayton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan G. Clayton, Rockdale and Randy Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barnie L. Jones of Rockdale. Clayton is chief chemist and Jones is an aluminum plant foreman at Rockdale Works.

Miss Clayton and Jones, members of the National Honor Society, will enroll in the University of Texas at Austin this fall. Miss Clayton plans to study pharmacy and Jones will major in either chemistry or engineering.

Scholarship winners were selected from a record of 59 applicants who took the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) administered by the College Entrance Examination Board last fall. In addition to test scores, the local Alcoa Foundation Selection Board reviewed credentials of each candidate, considering such factors as scholastic achievement and personal qualities.

According to J. M. Morman, superintendent of the Rockdale Schools and chairman of the selection board, candidates had to be in the upper half of their class or have a C-plus average or better at the time of application.

The selection board, made up of Morman and other school superintendents, also named alternates for the scholarship. First alternate is Karen Shinn of Rockdale High School and Michael Parker of Rosebud-Lott High School. Karen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Shinn and Parker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Parker.

Miss Clayton and Jones become the 25th and 26th scholarship winners of Rockdale Works under the Alcoa Foundation program that began in 1953.

There are eight past winners currently pursuing degrees under the program. They are Kenneth Cockrell, Beverly Terry, Bobby Freeman, Sally Curtis, and Darrell Jacob, University of Texas at Austin; and Carol Sue Lucko of Cameron, Debra Thurman of Milano and Kathy King, Texas A&M University.

Joining Morman on the local 1972 selection board are school superintendents Jack Faulds of Caldwell; D. R. Dodson of Cameron; A. P. Kleinschmidt of Lexington; R. L. Porter of Milano; J. B. Scribner of Taylor; B. C. Sims of Thorndale and A. K. McCown of Thrall.

The scholarship program is directed by a sponsoring committee of Oxsheer Smith, Cameron; Carlos Parker, Taylor; C. A. Wuensche, Thorndale and George Bredt and George W. Hutton of Rockdale.

By Absentia....

People are either disinterested or disgusted enough with politics that registration in Texas is only half of the 7.7 million potential.

And current registration is running almost 300,000 behind registrations at the same time in 1968 and 370,000 behind 1970.

Everybody from the Governor on down is wondering why. It may be because of lack of confidence in state government heightened by the Gus Mutscher et al conviction, now on appeal.

It probably goes deeper than that. This concern or even distrust of government is national, re: the Milwaukee Journal's commentary below.

If we don't register, we can't vote. And if we don't vote, we may think we have nothing to do with poor government, but very likely are condoning what ever occurs by absentia.

Think about it. People in public office are.

What Others Say...

Lots Of Study...

National commissions---investigating riots, crime, pornography and other social perplexities---tend to write on the breeze. Their recommendations often are ignored or only feebly implemented.

So justifiable skepticism greets the Justice Department's new National Advisory Committee on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals, which will look at everything from courts and prisons to police and prosecutors. Although the new group is to establish "for the first time" national goals and performance standards, the truth is that it will be plowing essentially the same ground as did President Johnson's crime commission in 1967. The latter's solid and still highly current suggestions stirred much discussion but far too little action.

More study cannot hurt? Maybe not; it might even galvanize lagging activity. At the same time, however, there is discernibly low faith in government today. If another study in a vital field has all the impact of a marshmallow bombardment, it could indeed do more harm than good.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

WILLOWBROOK --THE GREAT DISGRACE

SEN. JACOB K. JAVITS (N.Y.) ". . . As a public service, WABC-TV in New York has focused attention on the tragic conditions at the Willowbrook State School in New York, a residential facility for the mentally retarded. . ." (The TV transcript was ordered to be printed in the Record. Excerpts follow):

ANNOUNCER. There are some aspects of life which society has hidden from public view. The following program will remind you that they exist and that we all bear a responsibility to humanity.

GERALDO RIVERA. It's been more than six years since Robert Kennedy walked out of one of the wards here at Willowbrook and told newsmen of the horror he'd seen inside. He pleaded then for an overhaul of the system that allowed retarded children to live in a snake pit. That was way back in 1965 and somehow we'd all forgotten. The Doctor invited me to see the conditions he was talking about, so unannounced we toured Building #6.

The Doctor had warned me that it would be bad. it was horrible. There was one attendent for perhaps 50 severely and profoundly retarded children. The children, lying on the floor and smeared with their own feces, they were making a pitiful sound. . . a kind of mournful wail that it's impossible for me to forget. How can I tell you about the way it smelled? It smelled of filth. It smelled of disease. It smelled of death.

DR. WILKENS. There are 5,300 patients at Willowbrook, which is the largest institution for the mentally retarded in the world. One hundred percent of the patients at Willowbrook contract hepititis within six months of being in the institution. Most patients at some time in their life have parasites.

GERALDO RIVERA. Two days after our first unofficial visit our camera crew was given an authorized tour of the facility. We were shown children who were fully clothed and generously attended. It was to insure that this sudden improvement in the quality of life was permanent that we returned without the knowledge of the school administration and through a back door It was the first day all over again.

* * * * *

REP. F.J. BRASCO (N.Y.) ". . . I will join in sponsoring legislation in the House similar to that being introduced in the Senate by Senator Javits which would call for both adequate personnel and adequate funding to meet the needs of these children. Congress must, before this session concludes, pass meaningful legislation in the area. . ."

A GRASSROOTS COMMENT

New York State's problem becomes a National problem when Federal funds are solicited to correct conditions that, possibly, exist in "WILLOWBROOKS" across the country.-J.C.

Apollo 16 Mission Will Explore Moon Mountains

By Peter Mosley
Reuter Correspondent

HOUSTON

Bringing the moonship Orion down for man's fifth lunar expedition will be like landing amid the topmost peaks of the Andes mountains, says astronaut John Young, commander of next months Apollo 16 mission.

But the biggest question mark is not so much the landing itself as whether Young and fellow crewman Charles Duke will be able to reach their objectives once down.

Landing site for the penultimate mission of the Apollo program is a comparatively flat but cratered plain nestling at 18,000 feet in the moon's southern highlands. Called the Descartes Region, after a crater of that name lying to the south, it will be the scene of the first and only Apollo visit to the moon's highlands -- even though these make up an estimated 80 per cent of the lunar surface.

All previous sites, and the Taurus - Littrow area selected for next December's final mission, were in comparative lowlands. The Hadley Rille region explored by Apollo 15 last summer was some 13,000 feet lower than descartes.

Young, a Navy captain making his fourth space flight at age 41, predicts Apollo 16 will be "just as great and possibly more exciting" than Apollo 15.

During almost 73 hours on the moon -- the longest stay yet-- Young and Dukes main objectives include sampling the realitively flat landing area, called the Cayley Plains; driving their lunar rover up the side of a peak called Stony Mountain, to the south; and then, on the third and final excursion, attempting to scale the rocky flank of North Ray crater, to the north.

Photographs indicate North Ray is of similar size but probably more rugged than Cone Crater, which defeated astronauts Alan Shepard and Edgar Mitchell on the Apollo 14 mission to Fra Mauro.

"There have been some pretty darned sceptical reports of our ability to navigate up to North Ray and, for that matter, up onto Stone Mountain," Young said in a recent interview.

"That's going to be the

At one stage it was planned to have astronaut Thomas Mattingly, orbiting the moon in the command ship Casper, scan the Descartes site with powerful binoculars as he flew overhead and radio down instructions to his comrades on the best route through the boulders. But the plan was finally scrapped as unworkable.

Young and Duke, who will be making his first space flight, plan to bring back at least 195 pounds or rocks and soil samples. Scientists believe the rocks will confirm the theory evolved from previous missions that the highlands, seen from earth as the light colored regions of the moon, contain a much higher proportion of aluminum than the dark colored mare (sea) areas.

"Every new piece of evidence seems to confirm this," says geochrmist Dr. Paul Gast, head of planetary and earth sciences at the Houston manned spacecraft center.

If Apollo 16 finally proves it, man will have established a vitally important fact in understanding the composition and, indirectly, the evolution of the moon.

To gather highland material, the astronauts will try to drive and then climb about 250 feet up the side of Stone Mountain, where a convenient rockslide appears to have deposited material from the higher slopes.

At North Ray crater, they will collect rocks from as close to the rim as possible. Then, if they can get close enough, they will take photographs of the inside of the crater itself. Scientists on earth will later attempt to identify the rocks with particular layers

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editar:

As I understand it, a big eastern grocery chain has been advertising against the price of meat, telling its customers beef is too high and they ought to buy something else.

On the other hand, incidentally, cattlemen point out that beef on the hoof is now selling for what it was 20 years ago.

But the point that interests me is the grocery chain's thinking. I'm not sure those folks have thought this thing through.

That is, if they want you to stop buying meat because it's high, what does this do to other items? If you're going to stop buying anything that's gone up in the last few years, you can write your grocery list on one finger nail.

Furthermore, better stop buying cars, clothes, electricity, tractors, telephones, college education, public schools, etc.

Whatever you do, don't get sick or hurt. Hospital costs have doubled and tripled in the last 20 years.

Don't vote for anybody for Congress. Congressmen's salaries have gone up 100 per cent in the last 20 years. An aged Congressman now costs twice as much as aged beef did 20 years ago.

Don't smash a fender or blow a gasket. Garage charges have gone up tremendously in the last few years and the only way to fight this is to stop having things fixed.

In fact, the only way to bring high prices down is to stop everything. Have meatless meals, car - less months, hospital-less lives, etc. Come to think of it, under this attack, you couldn't even buy a copy of The Cameron Herald. I said meat-less meals, but actually it'd have to be food -less meals, and go light on the water. Water bills have gone up too.

The more I think about this grocery chain's notion of fighting high prices, the more I'm convinced it must be tired of the grocery business. If you go into a store determined not to buy anything that hasn't gone up, the only thing I can think of you can come out with is a package of chewing gum.

What's that? It's gone up too? Then there's nothing left to do but to stay out of grocery stores and grow your own food. You don't mean it, the price of seed has gone up too? And fertilizer? And garden tools?

This calls for a halt to everything.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Vets Should Act Fast For GI Bill

Millions of veterans could lose part or all of their GI educational benefits if they don't act promptly, the Veterans Administration warned today.

Jack Coker, Director, explained that those whose benefits are in danger were discharged between January 31, 1955, and June 1, 1966. For these veterans, eligibility for VA educational assistance payments for GI Bill schooling expires on May 31, 1974, whether they are enrolled at that time or not.

The expiration date is fixed by a 1966 law which, for the first time, extended eligibility for education benefits to Post Korean veterans with service after January 31, 1955. Each veteran has eight years in which to use his benefits.

Normally, the eight years are computed from the date of his release from military service. But because the benefits were not available until June 1, 1966, when the law became effective, the eight years start from the date the benefits became available for those discharged before that date.

Certain types of training, authorized for the first time on August 31, 1967, are not affected by the 1974 expiration date.

Does your hot shower end in the middle of your hot shower?

And, as if that isn't bad enough, you've got three kids and a very irate wife prepared to tar and feather you for using up their hot water.

Maybe it's time to move up to a larger gas water heater. Gas water heaters are easy to buy. Easy to install. And they recover hot water up to twice as fast as electric water heaters.

Make the decision. You'll stop getting into hot water with your family, and start getting into hot water with your shower.

Plant Processes Chicken Manure

By Bill McCutchen

Poultry manure has long been recognized as one of the better soil conditioners and sources of fertilizers, but several factors to date have limited its acceptance and use by homeowners, truck croppers, and other agricultura uses.

Some of the problems have been weed and grass seed in the manure, high moisture content making handling difficult and problems with the wife and neighbors complaining about the odor.

Lynn Ogea, of Rockdale and general manager of "White Hen Soil Builders", has come up with the solutions to these problems.

Lynn has instalied a rotary manure dryer which converts wet droppings to dry, sterile organic nutrients in granular from ready for packing and sale to gardeners and horticulturists.

The wet manure passes directly through the open flame with temperatures up to 1400 degrees. Chemical analysis of this valuable by-product is typically moisture 10.4 percent; nitrogen 5.85 percent, phosphoric acide 4.9 percent; 2 percent potash and 80 percent matter.

Lynn Ogea said that they expected to be in full production by March 24. The "White Hen Soil Builders" plant is located on the Ogea farm at Rockdale and bulk and bagged sales will be made there. The processed material will be sold at $65.-00 per ton and the plant will deliver purchases of one ton or more. Sales will also be made in 50 pound bags at $2.50 and in other volumes in bulk up to one ton.

In a recent speech to about 1,000 cattlemen at the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Assoc. in Houston, Secretary of Agriculture, Earl L. Butz, warned livestock producers, "As a consumer, I know that price controls won't work. What good does a consumer get from a low price for beef if no beef is available at that price? Price controls simply won't work for commodities as perishable, as seasonal, and as varied in quality as food products."

Some consumers, Butz said, who are either too young or too forgetful to remember the OPA (Office of Price Administration) days of Ward War II, may think that want controls, "They should read history. It would be easier to learn what's wrong with price controls on meat by reading history than to learn it again while standing in line at a half-empty meat counter."

Farm News

EXOTIC NEWCASTLE

The spread of exotic Newcastle disease in southern California has brought on a national emergency, but Texas should escape the threat of the poultry disease, says Dr. James Armstrong, Extension veterinarian. Although several cases of the disease were found in the El Paso area last December, these are under control. Sentinel birds susceptible to the disease were placed on the quarantined premises and to date they have remained healthy.

INTENSE FORAGE

Intensify forage production by heavy fertilization on small acreages, advises Dr. Neal Pratt, Extension agronomist. Many pastures are on soil naturally low in fertility, and quality forages require high levels of nutrients. The long growing season in Texas also calls for topdress applications of fertilizer. All plant food applications should be based on soil test recommendations. With intense forage production, an intensive grazing system can be initiated for additional profits.

Like a savings account, a growing forest draws annual interest in wood fiber.

RAINFALL

Last weeks rain over parts of the county was a blessing, but just wasn't enough in most instances and some places like Branchville, Rockdale and Thorndale just about got left out.

Some areas receiving rain still did not get enough for planting, but any rainfall is a blessing now.

PLANTING

Grain Sorghum and corn planting in the county is virtually complete and cotton planting is just getting started in most communities.

Beef Specials Coming In Next Months, Expert Says

COLLEGE STATION

Bargain - hunting housewives will likely find more specials at the meat counter in the next few months.

Dr. Donald E. Farris, a livestock marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Texas A&M University, said retail meat prices should reflect the trends in cattle and beef prices which futures speculators predict will fall by as much as 10 percent by the end of the year.

The professor in the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology added that the decline will be too small to expect across - the - board reductions in beef prices.

"We'll probably see more specials on beef at the supermarkets, however."

Cattle and beef prices have been pushed to a 20-year high this winter, Farris explained, because the supply of cattle was temporarily lower than anticipated.

"Supply levels should return to normal when the cattle we have in feedlots go to market in late spring and summer."

How much prices will decline is difficult to estimate, Farris said.

"Demand for beef has never been stronger, and this could offset much of the influence that an increased supply would have had on beef prices."

People tend to buy more meat when they have more disposable income. Retroactive pay raises approve by the federal wage board last January could keep demand for beef (and its price) at a high level, Farris suggested.

The last comparable high in beef rpices occurred when beef demand increased because of the Korean War.

"For the 15 years prior to 1969, beef prices at the farm level generally have been depressed," Farris said, adding that retail price increases during that time

SHIN OAK POISONING

Livestockmen are urged to keep cattle out of pastures where shin oak is growing this spring. Sand shin oak poisoning is a definite problem in parts of Texas, and annual livestock losses have been estimated at more than $10 million.

Rural Development Ideas Become Part Of New Bill

Several major recommendations for rural development which were presented by Governor Preston Smith to the National Governors' Conference last year have been made a part of the far-reaching rural development bill approved Tuesday by the U. S. Senate Agriculture Committee.

Governor Smith's proposals, which were adopted by the National Governors' Conference, would provide incentives for industry to locate in the smaller communities and would bolster the rural economy.

One of the key features of the Governor's recommendations called for a program of community development grants for rural communities in need of assistance. These grants would enable State and local governments to carry out projects with orderly growth and development in accordance with plans which meet State and local needs.

The Senate legislation would provide loans, grants and other assistance to allow small towns to develop facilities needed to attract business and industry.

Another feature of the Senate bill would set up a new fund earmarked to be used by state governments for rural renewal. This is very similar to the proposal of Governor Smith.

Commenting on the Senate bill, Governor Smith said, "I am encouraged by the bill's approval and I believe it marks a major step toward solving some of the problems which face our rural areas. However, it does not provide tax incentives for industries to locate in the smaller towns which is a vital factor in any rural development program. The National Governors' Conference and the Southern Governors' Conference have approved my recommendations for such tax incentives and I will continue to urge our U. S. Senators and Representatives to include these provisions in the rural development program.

"I have also recommended the establishment of a national board, representing all phases of modern agriculture, to stabilize agricultural prices, to raise the earnings of producers, and to maintain reserves necessary for price stability," the Governor pointed out.

As chairman of the Governors' Conference Committee on Rural and Urban Development, Governor Smith conferred several times with Senator Hubert H. Humphrey, chairman of the Rural Development Subcommittee, on the proposals to revitalize rural communities and small towns.

Sponsors of the Senate bill said it is the most comprehensive legislation yet devised to strengthen the nation's rural economy.

Angus Group Offers New Program

The American Angus Association this week moved to allow "open" artifical insemination within the breed. Starting immediately members who follow the proper procedures may sell and use unlimited quantities of semen and Association members may record the offspring from registered Angus cows even though they own no part of bull, Lloyd D. Miller, executive secretary, has announced.

At the same time Miller reported approval by the Association's Board of Directors of a comprehensive National Angus Sire Evaluation program. The program, he said, is designed to help members evaluate the performance of their herd bulls by checking their ability to sire top gaining, high quality, efficient cattle.

Basically, the program allows for sale of A.I. certificates to bull owners by the American Angus Association. A properly executed certificate signed by the bull owner, inseminator, and the owner of the female, must accompany an application for registration.

Intensified Farm Planning Program Aiding Farmers

COLLEGE STATION

Low-income farmers have increased their gross farm revenue by 20 percent, according to an evaluation of a teaching aide program begun in 1969.

The Texas Intensified Farm Planning Program employs successful small farm operators as "program aides" to help teach more efficient farm practices to their low-income neighbors.

Texas-IFPP, a project of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, basically involves 11 program aides who assist 224 low-income farmers in 10 counties: Lamar, Red River, Cherokee, Freestone, Falls, Milam, Lee, Washington, Guadalupe and Starr.

Evaluated in its second year by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station under funding of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the program has shown encouraging results, according to Howard Ladewig and Dr. Vance W. Edmondson of the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology at Texas A&M University.

Ladewig and Edmondson found that gross farm inn come for program participants increased by $50,000 between 1968 and 1970. Almost all of the gain was in income from livestock production, they said.

In the two years compared , corn production yields increased from 23 to 35 bushels per acre on participating farms.

The study also noted that participation by low-income farmers in government agricultural assistance programs doubled and tripled over the two-year period. More participation was also noted in various Extension Service programs emphasizing practices in livestock and truck crop production.

Fungicides Control For Brown Patch

St. Augustine grass lawns will be greening up soon and circular patterns of dead grass will be noticeable. The problem -- brown patch.

Brown patch is a fungus disease occurring in late spring or early fall. It is characterized by circular patterns (1 to 50 feet in diameter) of dead grass in the turf, explains Dr. Walter Walla, plant pathologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Often healthy grass will persist or grow back into the interior of the circle so that the diseased area has a "doughnut appearance."

Where the brown patch fungus is present in St. Augustine grass growing in shady or moist areas, a large area of turf may be thinned and eventually killed.

According to Walla, the disease develops rapidly in moist areas where temperares range between 75 and 85 degrees F. Fungus activity stops when the air temperature reaches 90 degrees. This explains the seasonal development of the diseases, notes the pathologist.

Brown patch can be effectively controlled by timely fungicide applications. The fungicide should be applied when the disease is expected or when it first appears, says Walla.

Fungicides recommended for control of brown patch include PCNB and the Maneb -Zinc ion complex. These materials are available at farm supply stores or garden centers.

Five board members were elected: Alvin Mullinax, president; Donald Lemon, vice president; Mrs. Frankie Ehler, secretary; and directors Dwayne Orsag and Eugene Tomek.

TO WED - Mr. and Mrs. Lannis A. Petty announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Rebecca Sue, to David Lee Simmers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Simmers of Amarillo, Texas. The Wedding is planned for June 10 at St. John's Methodist Church in Rockdale.

Cameron History Club Marks 60th Anniversary With Luncheon

The Cameron History Club, organized in 1912 for the serious study of history and parliamentary law, marked 60 years of continuous study programs and meetings at a luncheon Saturday in the Nelson Green home.

History Club members were greeted with decorative lettering on the front hall steps that spelled ou "Happy 60th Birthday". Highlights of the afternoon were a sketch of the club history presented by Miss Ada Margaret Smith and reminiscences of Mrs. W. O. Triggs, a charter member of the History Club and special guest for the anniversary luncheon.

The study club was founded by a group of about 35 young Cameron women who met at the home of Miss Ada Henderson. It was the "brain child" of Mrs. John (Winnie Henderson) Martin who had just graduated from the University of Texas and was anxious to continue her education.

Early meetings followed a lesson study, principally of American history. Roll calls were answered with such pre-announced topics as Mexican and Chinese Current Events, original verses or Responses from James Whitcomb Riley. Lesson study was followed by a parliamentary drill or round-table discussion on such topics as music or pioneer life.

The Club's first president, the late Mrs. Graham Gillis, looked ahead to possible extended discussions and printed a time table in the first year book. Roll call was alloted 10 minutes, lesson study 45 minutes, papers 20 minutes and round table or parliamentary drill 15 minutes.

A Texas Luncheon was a highlight of the Club's early history. This was held in 1916. Place cards cut in the shape of the Lone Star had a water color sketch of the state capitol hand painted by Mrs. A. N. Green. The menu included Mrs. T. S. Henderson's famous spoon bread made from corn grown on their farm and ground at the local grist mill, fresh vegetables from home gardens and cherry pie made from cherries grown in Silverton, Texas.

During the second world war emphasis changed from history to current topics. Program topics included "Women in the War", "Governmental War Agencies", "Scientific Developments of the War," and "War Reflected in Prose and Poetry."

Following World War II program topics changed to a more general theme that the club still follows with subjects ranging from gardening hints to book reviews and sketches of world leaders.

A birthday cake centered the serving table for the 60th anniversary luncheon. Spring bouquets decorated the dining room and living room where luncheon tables were centered with African violet plants. Hand painted wooden napkin rings inscribed with members names marked places at the tables.

On display throughout the house were year books and other mementos from the Club's early days.

Mrs. Green and Mrs. Harry Tag were co-hostesses for the luncheon. Mrs. John B. Henderson, Sr. is current president of the History Club.

ENGAGED - Mr. and Mrs. Dana F. Monroe of Cameron announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Carol Jane, to Ronald Wayne Beeson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Crawford of Saxapahaw, North Carolina. The bride-elect is a graduate of Texas Christian University where she was a member of Zeta Tau Alpha. Mr. Beeson completed a tour of duty with the United States Air Force and is presently a student at Texas Wesleyan College. A May 20 wedding is planned at 7 p.m. in the Chapel of Polytechnic United Methodist Church, Ft. Worth.

Book Review Is Program For Club

The Pleasure and Profit Club held its March 23rd meeting in the home of Mrs. B. F. Grimes. Club members enjoyed a book review by Mrs. Grimes, who told about some of John K. Terres' 'animal friends' in his book, "From Laurel Hill to Siler's Bog." Terres told of the habits little noticed routines in animals such as the racoon.

Teeres had written about his observations of these animals during his retirement in North Carolina after completing his work on "Encyclopedia of North American Birds."

After the book review several members also shared experiences with favorite pets or wild animals. It was noted that in recent years there is a growing geographical nearness of a variety of wild animals.

Mrs. Paul Young presided over a short business session, which included a discussion of the success of the program of the Friends of the Library, who sponsored the Methodist's Children's Choir, for which the Pleasure and Profit Club served as hostess.

The April 13 meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Hervert Nance.

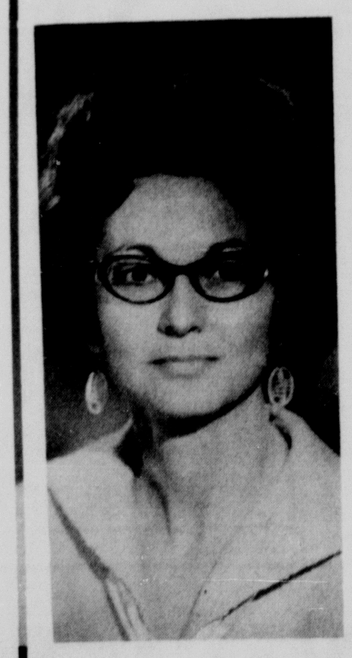
You And Your Stars

When asked why she became interested in astrology, Mrs. Nancy McCullough, who is starting the astrological question answer column "You and Your Stars" with this issue, stated it explained why she was completely incompatible with a wonderful, generous man who was also a good father. Mrs. McCullough has 12 astrological squares (bad news) with her ex-husband which explains why they were so incompatible.

Her interest in astrology goes back to 1962 when she began her first of four correspondence courses. She taught a basic astrology class at Del Mar College in Corpus Christi in the Fall of 1971. She will teach future classes when they materialize.

An intuitive Pisces, she is looking forward to her column. Through it she hopes to make everyone aware of the guidance and potential available through astrology.

A native of South Texas and the mother of two teenage daughters, Mrs. McCullough attributes her trouble-free existence with her daughters to the guidance she obtained with astrology.



NANCY McCULLOGH

Astrology, which predates the birth of Christ by several thousand years, increases daily in acceptance. Bring a controversial subject, it is never mentioned without arousing comments of various extremes: fascination, awe, anger, intrigue, acceptance or outright refusal.

In the same manner, an individual's liking or disliking of another person decombined planets.

Dear Stars, for several months our daughter and her mother have fought constantly. It seems they agree over nothing at this time. Can the stars explain why? The birth data is included.

Troubled Dad

Dear Troubled Dad, Your daughter's birth data places her Moon early in the sign of Gemini. The current movement of Saturn places that planet in the same location as your daughter's Moon. The Moon represents the mother and Saturn represents obstacles, obstructions, and needed discipline thus causing this turmoil. Saturn is moving away from this location, so within a few months things should be back to normal.

Turkey Is 'Best Buy' For Spring

COLLEGE STATION

"Turkey, the chosen meat for Easter, is presently one of the most economical meat choices you'll find in most meat markets," said Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt of the Texas Agricultura Extension Service.

"The large size bird usually costs less per pound and has greater proportion of meat to bone, thus making it a real value."

The Houston consumer marketing specialist advised taking note of the inspection mark on the turkey you buy. This indicates that the bird was inspected for wholesomeness throughout the packing operation and was wholesome when it left the packing plant. When buying, select your turkey from well refrigerated display cases, and be sure the package isn't torn or damaged.

Also, this week, many stores will feature eggs just in time for the Easter egg hunt. Fryer chickens continue to be an excellent protein choice though prices are higher in some markets.

Generally, pork prices are up. But smoked hams continue in the liemlight, and more canned hams are being featured, along with the popular semi-boneless style.

Bacon and smoked picnics offer economical buys. In fresh cuts, one-fourth loin cut chops, rib end roasts and Boston butt roasts sport economical prices.

"Remember, if you think the beef prices are too high, then shop for specials in other areas to keep your food budget in line," Mrs. Clyatt suggested.

"Turkey for spring" is the economy tip of the season. Turkey provides a favorite flavor for all ages that is highly nutritious (highest in protein, high in niacin and riboflavin) and a dieter's dream (lowest in fat and cholesterol content), but it's also an economical meat to serve—as low in price today as it was 15 years ago.

Spring Turkey With Vegetables

1. Thaw turkey at room temperature, allowing 1 hour per pound.
2. Remove plastic bag. Remove neck and giblets from cavities; rinse turkey and drain.
3. Stuff as desired and fasten legs either by tying or tucking under skin band. Neck skin should be skewered to back and wings twisted to rest under turkey.
4. To roast, place turkey breast-up on small rack in shallow roasting pan. Brush with melted butter, if desired. If roast meat thermometer is used, insert into thick part of thigh. Roast at 325°F. Time chart below is guide to length of cooking time. About 1½ hours before turkey should be done, place pared carrots and potatoes around base of turkey, turning to coat each with drippings. Continue roasting until thermometer registers 180-185°F., when turkey is done.

NOTE: A "tent" of foil placed loosely over the turkey will control the degree of brown-ness and may be removed the last half hour for final browning.

Baptist Students To 'Hit' Beach

More than 1,000 college students from Baptist Students Unions on 80 Texas campuses will converge on both north and south Padre Island during the Easter weekend to tell other kids on the crowded beaches about Christ.

Students from individual campuses will operate as separate units, bunking in campers, tents and shelters and preparing their own meals under adult supervision.

Two features of the three-day project, March 31 - April 2, will be Easter sunrise services on both ends of the island, April 2, and a Baptist - operated mobile medical clinic on the south end.

A staff of medical personnel will operate the mobile medical clinic, which will be open all three days in Andy Bowie Park on South Padre Island, to combat drug and other medical problems which may arise. It is sponsored by the Lower Rio Grande Baptist Association, Weslaco, under the direction of Robert Smith.

The four sunrise services are scheduled for students operating in pre - designated zones at Port Aransas Park, Nueces County Park, Malaquite Beach and South Padre Island.

"What is Easter, Mommy?"

"Is it the time when bunnies get born?" I looked at my little daughter, appalled.

Did she really think of Easter in terms of sugared eggs, fluffy bunnies and pretty candies? Had I given her the impression that for grownups Easter is a time for new clothes, flowered hats and fragrant corsages? Surely, at some time, I must have told her the real story of Easter. Or had I?

I was really flabbergasted at my negligence — it took my little daughter to make me realize it. I dismissed my house chores and sat down right then to tell her the glorious Easter story of the Resurrection. I told her what hope this event brought for all of mankind — with its promise of eternal life.

I might add that the next week I enrolled my daughter in church school. And my husband and I started attending church again. We haven't missed a Sunday since.

Doors Of Yoe

By Marilyn Hauk

Monday afternoon Mrs. Nance left for a few days taking with her Alva Ray Mullinax, Darrel Schneider, Cathy Collins, Debby Coker and Randy Tumlinson for the annual student council convention.

Margaret Gause, you must be more careful about smashing your finger!(Ouch)

Mrs. Green has once again given her second and fifth period English classes something to keep them busy. They are doing a comparison with our section of the country with some other section of the country. If some weary pupil asks how you live -- don't take it personally!

Suddenly some Yoe High students have become avid magazine readers. What does Cosmopolitan have that makes people so curious?

Sam Perry Closes Store At Rockdale

After 44 years of selling everything from lariat ropes to TV sets, and seeing the hardware business well into the age of electronics, Sam Perry is closing down his Rockdale store.

Perry Hardware and Furniture, a downtown business fixture in Rockdale since 1947, will shut its doors May 18. Perry, whose hardware store career dates back to 1928 at Lexington, is going to take his first vacation.

Sam says the hardware business "has been good to me, and despite the changing buying habits of the public and the lure of the pretty city shopping centers, there will always be a need for a common hardware store."

Sam started his quitting business sale Monday. He said the sale was "no gimmick. We're going to sell all our merchandise out on or before May 18." The sale is being directed by Claude D. Adams with the Paul K. Brooker Agency of Wichita, Kansas.

What does the future hold for Sam Perry? "Nothing very definite," he said. Always a horse enthusiast, Sam says he will probably spend some time pursuing his riding interests.
